U.S. dedicated to peace in Asia, says Ford

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Declaring that the United States regards itself as a Pacific nation, President Ford said today "we are firmly committed to peace and security in Southeast Asia and throughout Asia."

Speaking at a state banquet given by Indonesian President Suharto in Freedom Palace, Ford said, "We see our own prosperity and progress linked with the vast populations, the dynamic economies, the abundant resources and the rich cultures of this great region."

"No area of the world is more important to us than Asia."

A high-spirited crowd estimated by police at 100,000 — waving American and Indonesian flags — lined the road from Jakarta airport into town to welcome Ford on arrival from Peking. It was in sharp contrast to the almost total absence of interested spectators in the Chinese capital.

En route to Jakarta a senior American official aboard Air Force One told newsmen the most important benefits derived from the Peking summit were the triangular aspects of diplomacy — the balancing off of China, the Soviet Union and the United States.

The official, who declined to be identified, sketched in broad strokes what diplomats call the "wide-ranging" impact of U.S.-China policy. It is based on "parallelism" and seeks to establish the points on which other sides see eye to eye, especially in discouraging Soviet expansionism.

The American president, on his first official visit to this teeming and oil-rich archipelago, noted in his banquet speech that there have been dramatic changes in the world, with all but the vestiges of colonial empires gone and cold war divisions broken down.

"In this complex time of change, America, as always, looks to its relationships with friends," he said. "Indonesia is such a friend. Indonesia exemplifies strength, and self-reliance, as well as international leadership and responsibility. We respect your nonalignment and your goal of national resiliency. We admire your contribution to regional peace. We value your friendship."

Suharto replied that with

"the end of the Vietnamese war — although there still exists deep concern regarding the possibility of disturbances threatening the security and stability of the various countries of the region — the Southeast Asian area is now facing a new era with all kinds of opportunities." He said this applied not only to the nations involved but to those who wish to aid them.

Ford, his wife Betty, daughter Susan, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and other members of the White House party sat at a table decorated with dolls made from coconut leaves representing shadow play figures of the Hindu Ramayana epic.

Suharto and his wife were at the airport to greet Ford and his wife and daughter as they arrived in a light drizzle and temperature in the 80s. It had been clear and near freezing when the Fords left Peking nearly eight hours before.

The airport welcome included a 21-gun salute, a canopied platform to keep the rain off, 400 honor guards and 400 journalists. But the airport was closed to the public, and there was a heavy guard of police and troops with automatic weapons.

Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik described the President's stay as a "working" visit and not just a courtesy call. But American spokesmen said no major issues required top-level attention. The two presidents met last in July, at Camp David, Md., during a visit by Suharto to the United States.

One subject they were certain to discuss this time was U.S. military and economic aid to Indonesia. Ford has asked Congress to approve a total of $42.5 million worth for the coming year. But a senior American official said, "That's a minor problem. It will be handled on the aide level."

The official said Indonesia, the largest and most populous country in Southeast Asia, is "of great consequence" as it and the other four members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations — Malaysia, Singapore, The Philippines and Thailand — try to organize themselves into a political, economic and "possibly a security grouping."

The President also was expected to give Suharto an account of his visit to China, with which Indonesia does not have diplomatic relations.

Informed sources said the Indonesians would express their support of the two pro-Indonesian factions in Portuguese Timor and their opposition to the leftist Fretilin movement which declared the island colony independent a week ago and proclaimed the Democratic Republic of East Timor.

The western half of Timor is Indonesian territory, and most observers expect Indonesia to absorb the rest of the island eventually. Fretilin sent two cables to Ford this week, asking him to intercede with Suharto on its behalf, but he and Kissinger were expected to ignore the messages if they ever got them.

Ceremonial banners decorated the streets to welcome the American visitors, and curbs along the main boulevard were given a fresh coat of whitewash. The governor of Jakarta ordered the national flag flown from sunup to sundown today and Saturday.

Ford's schedule in Jakarta included a banquet tonight and a two-hour meeting with Suharto on Saturday before leaving for Manila shortly before noon. Saturday night will be spent with President and Mrs. Ferdinand E. Marcos, and the Fords return to Washington Sunday.

"Give my best to Chairman Mao," Ford told Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping as they said goodbye at the Peking airport.

Kissinger told reporters he felt Teng and Mao clearly signaled that they would accept an arrangement for diplomatic relations with the United States similar to that the Japanese and the Chinese worked out in 1972.

The Japanese withdrew diplomatic recognition of the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan and closed its embassy in Taipei but continued trade, economic and cultural relations on a private basis.

Kissinger added, however, that there is no U.S. timetable for breaking diplomatic relations with the Taiwan government, the necessary first step toward full relations with China.

Unemployment rate dips to 8.3 pct.

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a one-month increase, the nation's unemployment rate dropped from 8.6 to 8.3 per cent of the labor force in November, the government reported today.

The drop in the jobless rate equaled the October increase and thus left the unemployment rate at the same level as in September. The government said 7.7 million persons were unemployed in November.

Before the October rise, joblessness had declined over the previous four months from its recession peak of 9.2 per cent last May. However, administration economists attributed the increase to "special factors" and had hoped the downward trend would be resumed in November.

Despite the improvement in November, joblessness is forecast to remain above 7 per cent through 1976.

The unemployment report provided the Ford administration with a second dose of favorable economic news in as many days. The Labor Department reported Thursday that wholesale prices leveled off last month for the first time since June, easing fears of a new bout with inflation.

In today's report, the Labor Department said the number of Americans without jobs dropped by 300,000 in November to 7.7 million following a nearly equal increase the previous month. Total employment showed little change for the third straight month and stood at 85.3 million.

With declining unemployment and employment about stable, the size of the civilian labor force fell by 460,000 in November to 93 million persons, moderating a relatively strong growth in the labor force evident since last March.

Despite the improvement in the jobless rate, the government said the average duration of unemployment, after declining in October, rose in November to a new high — 16.8 weeks — the current cyclical period. An increase in the number of persons unemployed for 27 weeks or more and a sharp decline in short-duration joblessness were blamed.

The number of persons working part time because they are unable to find work on a full-time basis was little changed at 3.3 million last month.

Among the major groups in the labor force, the jobless rate for adult men dropped from 7.1 to 6.9 per cent last month. The teen-age rate declined 1.3 percentage points to 18.6 per cent, while the rate for adult women held steady at 7.8 per cent.

Joblessness among white workers dropped from 7.9 per cent in October to the September level of 7.6 per cent. For blacks and other minority groups the jobless rate stood at 13.8 per cent, about the same level as in the previous three months.

Total non-farm payroll employment held at 77.5 million last month, in contrast to a substantial gain in each of the four previous months. Since June, payroll employment increased by 1.2 million but November was still 1.3 million below the record of 78.8 million reached in September, 1974.

Employment in manufacturing stabilized last month after substantial increases during the summer and fall. About the only manufacturing industry showing a gain last month was transportation equipment, where employment increased by about 20,000, the government said.

The construction industry, still experiencing the effects of recession with employment 700,000 below its pre-recession peak of early 1974, showed little improvement in November.

The length of the average work week for all production workers on non-farm payrolls increased slightly in November for the second straight month.

Illinois jobless rate falls to 9.5

CHICAGO (AP) — The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate in Illinois dropped to 9.5 per cent in November compared to 9.9 per cent in October, the state Department of Labor said Friday.

The lower figure is explained by a temporary upsurge in hiring in the trades sector, the department said.

Nationwide, the unemployment rate dropped to 8.3 per cent from 8.6 per cent.

In Rockford, the rate dropped a full percentage point to 11.1. There was a seven-tenths per cent decline in joblessness in the Bloomington-Normal area and one of a half per cent in Springfield, spurred by a seasonal rise in retail activity.

Unemployment dropped two-tenths of a per cent in Decatur and the Illinois portion of the St. Louis vicinity, while the rate in the Quad Cities remained unchanged.

Joblessness increased eight-tenths of a per cent in Champaign and advanced to 5.2 per cent in Peoria following what the Labor Department described as a general softening in nonexport industrial activity.

In Chicago, unemployment was down by about 4,000 jobs, despite layoffs by apparel and heavy machinery firms. However, the seasonally adjusted rate remained steady at 10.2 per cent.

At 3.7 per cent, the jobless rate in Bloomington-Normal was described by the Labor Department as "by far the lowest in the state among the areas we measure." The decline in the Springfield figure brought the rate to 6.2 per cent.

Unemployment in Decatur was measured at 10.8 per cent and in the Illinois section of the St. Louis area at 9.8 per cent. The unchanged rate for the Quad Cities was 7.1 per cent.

Joblessness in Champaign rose to 4.8 per cent and the increase in Peoria represented a .6 per cent gain.

Unhurt in bridge accident

Larry W. Holland, 20, Oregon, escaped injury Thursday morning when his car skidded out of control on Rock River bridge near Grand Detour.

Holland was southbound on Ill. 2. As he attempted to cross the frost-covered bridge his car slid into the west side of the bridge. The car then careened across the highway towards the east side. The vehicle then slid past the south end of the bridge and left the road.

No tickets were issued by investigating Lee County Sheriff's deputies.

How reduction stacks up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional tax staff experts provided this comparison showing what the House-passed 1976 individual income tax reduction plan would mean to some typical taxpayers with normal deductions of 17 per cent.

The bill, which the Senate takes up next week, makes permanent the 1975 temporary law's hikes in minimum and maximum standard deductions, taken by those who do not itemize on their tax returns.

The House-passed bill does not include a continuation of two temporary features of the individual 1975 tax returns. These features, due to expire Dec. 31, are special tax credits and new payments for low-income persons with children, and a special tax credit for buyers of new homes.

The table shows anticipated tax liability for various income brackets under the old 1974 law, the temporary 1975 law and the House-passed 1976 law.

Ford threatens veto of tax cut bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is likely to keep up the heat of his veto threat when the Senate next week begins scrutiny of the House-passed bill carrying $13 billion in personal tax cuts for 1976.

Ford's 2-month-old demand that any tax cut be tied to a lid on government spending was repeated Thursday when the President, in Peking, phoned House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes shortly before the final House vote on the tax bill.

Rhodes later told reporters that Ford repeated his vow that "he positively would veto this bill if it did not have a ceiling" on federal spending linked to it. After getting this word from Rhodes, the House narrowly rejected such a link-up in the form of Ford's proposed $395-billion lid on federal spending for fiscal 1977, the year starting next Oct. 1.

The vote of 220 to 202 against a spending lid found 218 Democrats and two Republicans overpowering 139 Republicans and 63 Democrats.

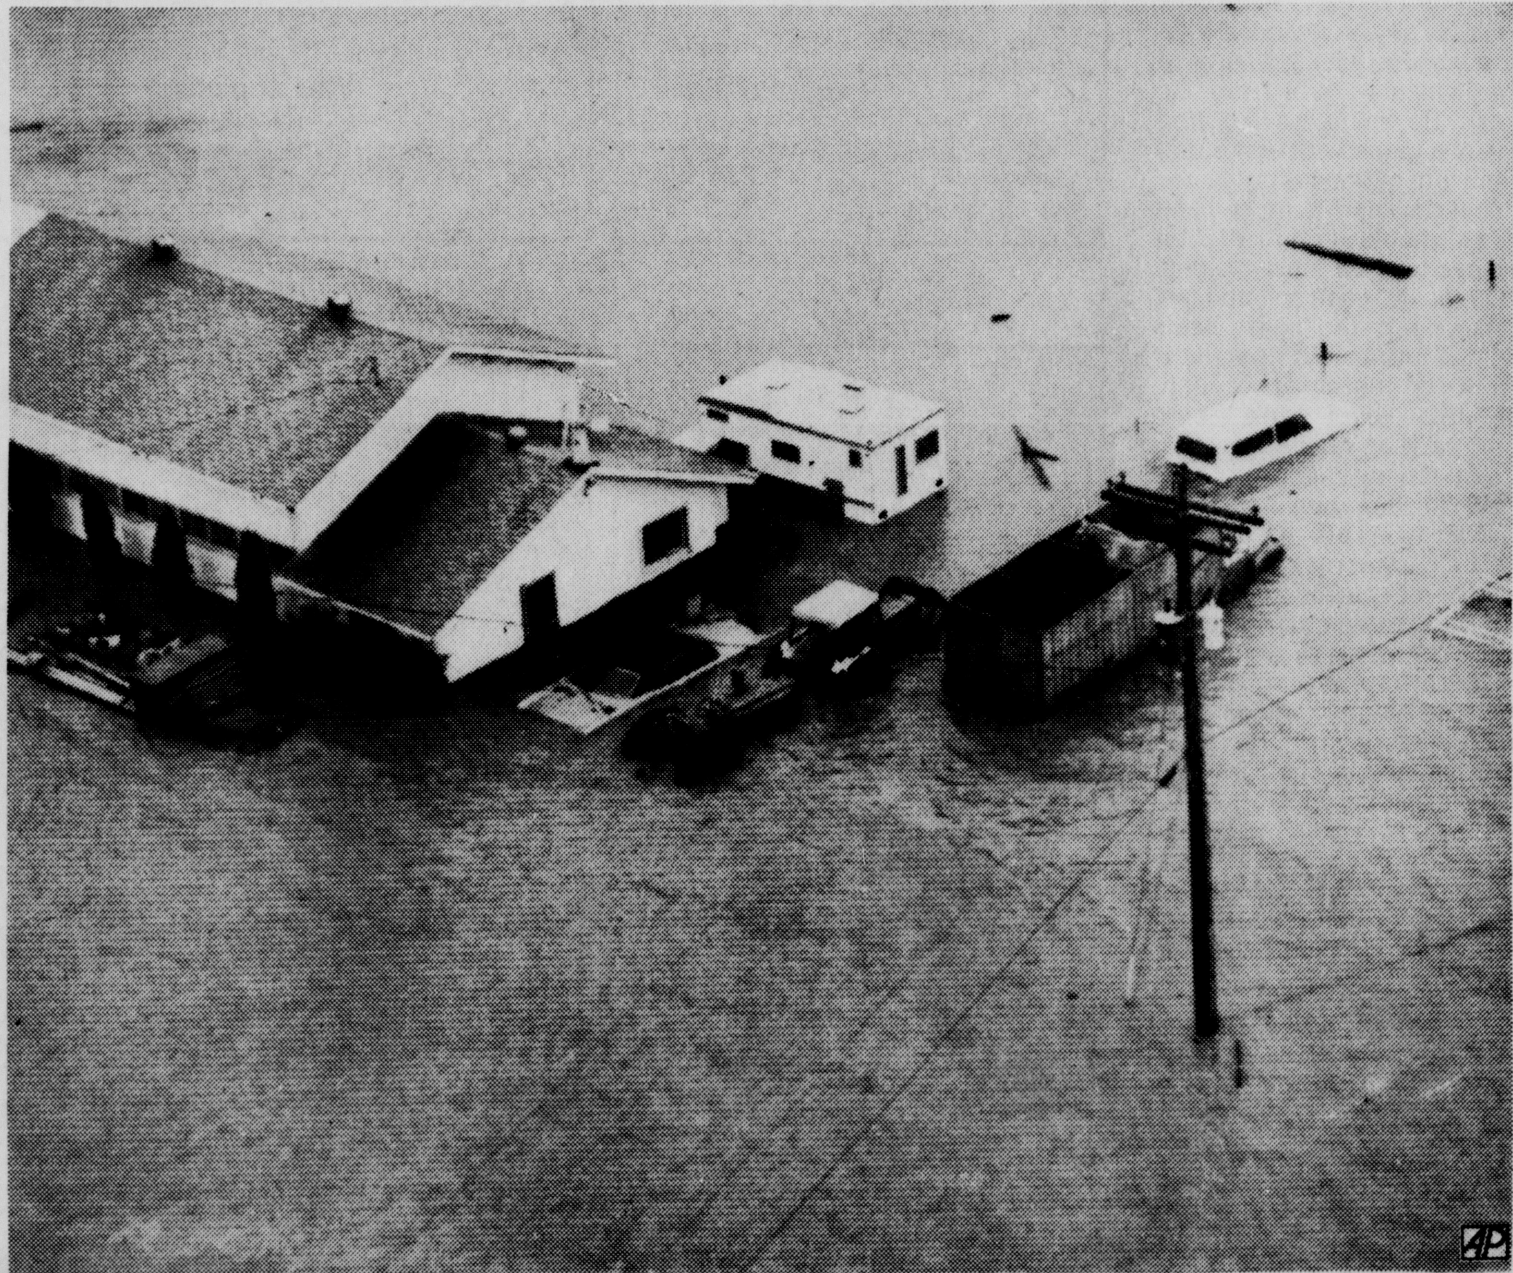

The tax cut then was approved 257 to 168, with 225 Democrats and 32 Republicans for the bill, 111 Republicans and 57 Democrats opposed.

Scott decides to step down

PITTSBURGH (AP) — After 33 years in Congress, Hugh Scott has decided to end his elective political career.

There was no fanfare, no exit in a blaze of glory, as the 75-year-old Philadelphia lawyer called it quits at a Pittsburgh dinner honoring another Pennsylvania Republican.

There was also no news conference, which he had often used with consummate skill to make his point during the 16 years he served in the House and the 17 more in the Senate where he has been Minority Leader since 1969. He has 13 months to go in his present term.

In a brief, written statement Thursday night he said he would not seek re-election next year, alluding to his already long service to his state and his country and to a desire to spend more time in rest and recreation.

Never once did Scott mention the current controversy raging around him, centering on charges he knew about illegal cash contributions to him from the Gulf Oil Corp. for almost two decades.

Scott has been generally silent since the Gulf story broke, but his office released a response on the subject. It said: "I have never knowingly received any corporate funds from anybody, anytime. I am not going to have any further statement."

Scott did not discuss the Gulf case with reporters Thursday, but he alluded to it in remarks at the dinner: "Anyone who lays a hand on me, let them beware. The courts are for that purpose."

The Watergate special prosecutor's office is investigating the allegations that Scott received $10,000 a year in cash from Gulf, along with other Gulf money matters.

Scott's biggest undoing was his hawkish support of the Vietnam war and his staunch defense of both President Richard M. Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who both quit in disgrace, forcing Scott to make a 180-degree turn and cry apologetically that he had been used and lied to.

One-party rule in Afro nations

By HENRY J. TAYLOR
President Marien Nguabi of the Congo (Brazzaville) has called on "Field Marshal" Idi Amin, the President of Uganda, to resign as chairman of the Organization of African Unity because of his stand on Angola.

Nguabi himself, like iron-fisted Amin, shot his way to power by the deadly process of killing off his rivals one by one. Amin, in turn, is notorious in our country for outrageously blasting America.

Amin is a pig-faced, swine-moraled swine expert in all kinds of foul diddles whose frontal elevation gives the impression of a large triangular kite about to float away into the sky on the fumes of champagne.

With President Ford's approval, Ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan ably answered Amin's anti-American blasphemies in the United Nations.

Both Nguabi and Amin care as little for their enslaved people as for a horse race in Ireland and both typify the fact that there is absolutely no democracy in their countries.

I have been in Africa a great deal and some years ago wrote the section on Africa in "The Book of Knowledge." The major African problem is not nationalism, and certainly not colonialism; it is tribalism. The problem is to detribalize the individual in order to nationalize him. For usually the tribal attachment is stronger than even the family tie. But the continent is a big order.

Africa is half again the size of the North American continent from the Arctic Ocean to Panama. The area could cover all of the United States, India, China and 10 Japans. And military force has become the political force in "Freedom Now" Africa.

It is 15 years since colonial flags began coming down. And in today's Africa three-quarters of the 350 million people there are under one-party government or military rule.

Only 11 of the 40 African nations now ruled by blacks or Arabs allow an opposition party. Even in these 11, a dictator is literally killing off the opposition as rapidly as he can and still survive.

Twenty-six are in the grip of military juntas or individual "generals." There have been 120 military coups in Africa since 1960. I know some of the "generals" and, like Nguabi and Amin, there hangs over them the aroma of professional killers.

Former French colony Gabon has been independent since 1960. Gabon has only about half the population of the Bronx. But it has had nine military coups since its independence. In such countries the progress toward democracy is reversed more often than it is speeded.

Zaire dictator Mobutu Sese Seko wears a diamond crown and lives a champagne life unbelievably lush, while his Zaire people are too poor, miserable and disease-infected to have hope.

In Ethiopia, the only Christian country in Africa, the late Emperor Haile Selassie was the bear in a bear-bating spectacle. His downfall was partly due to his government's refusal to even admit the existence of a famine in two provinces that caused nearly 100,000 deaths. But the revolution was a bloodbath by a cruel palace guard of prowling officers.

Maryland-sized Burundi that suffered its King Mwambutsa the Mwami for 46 years, still has a stone-age economy—the tribes refuse to raise anything but cattle, a status symbol—not a single newspaper and total instability. It has had 14 military coups. So has Dahomey. And portly "Maj. Gen." Gaafar al-Nimeiry, the president of the Sudan, recently had to rush from a conference in Algiers in the middle of the night to shoot down another rebellion at home.

This is typical of most similar "nations," large and small, on the Dark Continent.

Africa is a place of superstitions, dark customs and sinister prejudices where the fierce jungle trees can grow horizontally for 50 feet in their hopeless struggle toward the sunlight. And African rebellions, civil wars and tribal fratricide have claimed the lives of millions. To cite only Nigeria, the ghastly civil war and the starvation certainly took more than a million lives.

Both Nguabi and Amin are vicious, overstuffed tyrants as menacing as monstrously large, shining ravens flying in formation like a phalanx of fighter planes, shrieking their arrogance. Both are the beneficiaries of civil wars. And as civil wars usually end in dictatorships, so did theirs.

REFLECTIONS— Real estate owners, whether living in rural or in urban areas, always have some apprehension what kind of activities zoning authorities will permit to be conducted near their properties.

State law has given counties and municipalities authority to establish zoning ordinances decreeing what use may be made of particular land parcels.

These have set up guidelines what a property owner may do as he wishes without infringing enough on the rights of others.

Disagreements have come about how much infringement is enough to curb what a property owner may do with his real estate.

To have some assurance of protection from infringement by other property owners, citizens have given up some rights and act as a group rather than as individuals.

Traffic laws make it possible for us to drive automobiles more safely than if they did not exist.

The same thing is true for planned land use. If a community likes the beauty of the country, for instance, and wants to keep it that way, it must plan for land use.

"We can't all do as we please and still have everything beautiful and as we like to want it unless there is land use planning," declared Rod Engelen, vice president, Barton-Aschman Associates, Inc., Evanston, last week at Sauk Valley College.

The problem with zoning codes derived from planning of land use is they are administered by elected and appointed officials who, as suggested by Delbert Scheider, Freeport, chairman, Board of Trustees Highland Community College, "give them a certain flexibility and the ordinances may get liberal interpretation from those authorities which leaves property owners with no control of what happens about them."

Professor John Quinn of the University of Illinois has observed, "Public investment is a better tool than zoning in controlling the use of land."

Public investment as a method for implementing land use planning has been underutilized, according to Dr. Quinn.

Public investment, in this sense, is an implementation of planning. It comes from a decision by a local government to invest funds in a planned development so that later economic decisions will be made as the master plan suggests.

For instance, a plan for an area development calls for a certain traffic flow. This will be described by a transportation plan. The local government accepting this plan then will make public investment to implement the transportation plan.

When growth in the area does occur it will follow the direction laid out by the planners because the development will follow the traffic flow established by the implementation of the transportation plan.

What public investment does, then, is to carry out the government obligation for area growth before actual development starts and, when it does, it will follow the desired planned outline.

It is a way to control development, which many feel is a better method than by zoning, and is without coercion and denial of the right to use property as owners wish which zoning imposes.

Public investment is a way for local governments to cope with growing areas and still be in command with what the outcome will be.

Often, local government reacts to requests from developers and either denies the petitions or amends the planning of land use to accommodate the request.

When this is done too frequently, a community may just as well throw out its master plan for land use because it has been so amended as to lose any overall integrity it ever possessed.

Public investment to guide orderly development as originally planned is superior to this haphazard method which has been in practice for nearly every county and municipality.

It is the difference between putting a master plan into action when it is accepted than to sit back and wait for some developer to come along who wants to do something other than the planners outlined and to petition for a change in the overall plan.

Public investment to control property development is more effective than zoning and is less coercive.

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO

Tuesday's annual Christmas party for members of the Dixon Travel Club will include a 6 p.m. dinner at Lincoln Manor followed by an exchange of gifts in the home of one of the members.

25 YEARS AGO

The Dixon city council meets at 9 o'clock tonight, and one of the matters which may be discussed concerns the purchase of a new squad car for the police department. Certain automobile dealers in Dixon indicated to the Dixon Evening Telegraph that they were "fed up" on the manner in which the city handled such purchases. It was learned this morning, however, that some of the dealers would submit "token bids" just to go along with some members of the council due to the fact that a city election is coming up soon.

One hundred teachers and administrators—all members of the Rock River division of the Illinois Education association, will meet at the Loveland Community Building Wednesday, Dec. 6, Lee, DeKalb, Whiteside and Ogle Counties will be represented in discussions conducted by 10 groups on school problems.

DHS fan lauds Dick Franklin

During the past few weeks we've seen many letters to the "Voice of the People" regarding the "Bon Fire" attended by students of Dixon High School.

One of those letters cast doubt upon the abilities of the athletic staff at Dixon High School and referred to the success or lack of success of the basketball team for the past few years.

Now I'm not a sports nut by any standards, but there are two teams about which I might be classified a nut. They are namely the Notre Dame football team and the DHS basketball team. Any statement about either, even approaching criticism, must not go unanswered.

All teams have good and bad times and Dixon is no exception. As the won-lost record goes, so does the mumbling about the coach. And mumbling and cheering is what this letter is all about.

In any sport there are two dominant factors at work, skill and attitude. High school sports are particularly affected by the attitude of the players. The outcome of games is probably decided as much by spirit as skill.

I cannot think of anything more damaging to the spirit of the players than a bunch of adults mumbling about the coach. The attitude of the kids is directly related to what they hear around town and at home about the coach. Personally, I think Dick Franklin is a decent person and a fine coach.

We collectively, through the School Board, hire the coaching staff. As fans and parents we have an obligation to make clear to every kid participating in sports two things, first the coach is the boss, and second you respect his position.

Second guessing and mumbling about the coach to the players undermines the coach and the team and does nothing to improve the record, which is what brought on all the mumbling in the first place.

If the coach were as disloyal to the players as the fans are to the coach, we would indeed have reason to mumble. I have never heard Dick Franklin say anything deprecating about his players. And there have been years he could have protected himself by blaming the record on the skill of the players.

Just last week a highly touted coach of a large Rockford school stated "they were in for bad times as the good players just weren't available." Well dirty sweat socks to him. I'll take Dick Franklin in good times and bad times.

Now mumbling isn't only bad for the team it's bad for the mumbler. When a person is mumbling certain physical changes take place in the body. The diaphragm contracts and breathing becomes labored, gastric acids secrete and the stomach becomes ulcerated, the blood pressure increases and the heart is overworked, arteries constrict and brain activity becomes dangerously low.

Aside from all that, it causes wars. There is a case record of a 42-year-old mumbler who got so bad everyone thought he was from the class of 1909. He was last seen being hauled out of a game with basketball nets around him eating his program.

Now cheering on the other hand causes your diaphragm to expand and the lungs take on more oxygen, stomach muscles contract and pot bellies disappear, the heart beats regularly and more blood goes to the brain, thinking becomes brilliant and fun, the team wins more games, a parking place becomes available by the door, and you even start to like Sterling fans. And we all know how hard they are to like.

There's a case of a gal who did a study on the effects of a cheering crowd on the team and she found a team scores nine more points per game if the crowd cheers. She got everyone cheering so much they made her a pompon girl. Now that's not so unusual except she's the only pompon girl from the class of 1905.

Now if you disagree with what I've said tell me about it at halftime at the Sectional Tournament.

Cheers,
Donald F. Burke

Future mom waits in style

By ELLIE GROSSMAN
NEW YORK (NEA) — See those two young women over there? They're wearing identical blue jeans and T-shirts that picture a cat hanging by its paws from a crossbar. The caption reads, "Hang in There, Baby."

What's unusual, first, is that both women bought their outfits in maternity departments and, of lesser importance here, only one of them is pregnant. The other, a large-size woman, was attracted by the styling, which is as right for her as a pregnant woman, and the price which is probably lower than what she's used to paying.

It all underscores one fact: the Mother Hubbard look that pregnant women had to stomach a few years back has been shelved once and for all. Today's mother-to-be is choosing jumpers, denim or corduroy skirts and big tops with Oriental and ethnic touches, tie-back shirt dresses, and pantsuits. Even tennis dresses are available and, in lingerie, where lace and ruffles now grace nightgowns and slips, bikini stretch-lace panties.

"Whatever our customer sees in the major department stores and boutiques for juniors and missys, we carry," says Mary MacKenzie, founder with her husband of Motherhood Maternity Shops of Santa Monica, Calif. They manufacture 70 per cent of the clothes they sell and claim to be the country's largest chain of maternity stores with 232 outlets in 40 states.

"We feature coordinates in earth tones, medium brights and dusties, and we had a tremendous season this year with T-shirts and sweaters," says Mrs. MacKenzie. She started her first boutique 26 years ago after she went shopping for a gift for a pregnant friend and couldn't find anything to buy.

Depending on budget and climate, she estimates a woman buying a wardrobe for her first pregnancy would spend an average of $200 to $308. For that, she'll probably get a pair of jeans and a T-shirt, a day dress, a dressy top and pair of pants and, if she wears evening gowns, one of those, too. Whatever the lifestyle was before pregnancy, the woman will probably stick to it. Pants and sweaters, for instance, dresses and skirts, or a combination of the two.

Most of it will be machine washable, such as polyester and cotton, and the new crinkled beggar's cloth which comes with its own wrinkles so you don't have to worry about adding any.

Roberta Chaiken, herself expecting, is the buyer for Mother-to-Be maternity stores, also known as Maternity Modes and Young Maternity, which number 100 in 27 states and feature such manufacturers as Toni Lynn, Storkbound and Ma Mere.

"Pregnant women usually need their clothes around the fourth or fifth month," she says. "It's important for them to get fitted in the shoulders and, if it's a dress or skirt, in the length which should be middle of the knee to avoid a dowdy look."

Garments, she says, are designed to grow with the woman. "They're proportioned two inches larger in the bust, for example, and in a dress, the back hem is cut straight but the front is about one and one-half inches longer to allow for the stomach pulling it up as it grows."

In fabrics that don't stretch — denim, for instance — a panel of helena or stretch lace is incorporated across the stomach to allow for expansion.

Lady Madonna, a chain of 42 individually franchised stores across the country, caters to a more affluent, sophisticated customer, such as singer Diana Ross.

This year's line includes a denim jumpsuit with back pockets, a short stomach apron and a matching hooded jacket, and an elegant, Grecian, one-shoulder gown. Lester Hyatt, Lady Madonna's young, enthusiastic designer, sees one basic difference in designing for pregnant women. "You have to make room for the baby in the clothes," he says simply.

"I give the woman an optional sash with many of my dresses which she can wear around her waist in the first few months, loosen progressively as she grows, and finally raise for an empire look later on."

His turtle-neck, ribbed, long-sleeve bodysuits are doing very well and, he says, "There's a greater interest in dresses now and we're coming out of muted colors into brights."

His fabrics are soft and malleable because, "During pregnancy, a woman wants to be treated softly in fabric."

And, in every other way, too, come to think of it. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

WOMEN IN WAITING now find maternity clothes that baby their egos. Those who keep active can find flattering tennis outfits (left) or shop in style in a western-trimmed tunnel-waist polyester outfit. For more casual wear at home or at play there's a pantsuit in crinkled Calcutta cloth of polyester and cotton and for those who wear evening gowns (right) a jewel-tone print velvet with silk frog trim.

Alcoholics can handle parties

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have quit drinking. One of us had a serious problem with alcohol so we both decided to put it out of our lives. Our good friends are aware of this and have expressed their admiration.

This morning I received a real jolt. A "friend" who always leans on us when she's in trouble telephoned to say she is giving a rather large surprise party for a mutual friend but, "I didn't invite you because we'll be serving liquor and wine and the whole bit."

I wonder if she excluded any diabetics because she is serving a dessert. I had a good cry over the loss of our friendship because it died right there.

Please tell your readers (my former friend is among them) that alcoholism is a disease that can be controlled. We enlightened alcoholics realize it and can handle any invitation very nicely, thank you. — Making It

Dear M.I.: I don't want to pour kerosene on a brush fire, honey, but I think your "friend" already knows this. She didn't want to include you for another reason and that was her excuse. The loss of her friendship is nothing to cry about. She's a phony.

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing to you because my husband and I are deeply concerned about our 17-year-old daughter. Molly is terribly obsessed with death and anything connected with it.

The moment the newspaper comes to the house, Molly must see it immediately and check the obituaries. If she reads about the death of a young person she clips it out and puts it in a scrapbook. She has been doing this for at least two years and is now on her second scrapbook.

Molly goes to the cemetery about three times a week to visit the graves of some of her "scrapbook friends," as she calls them. She loves movies about death and went to see "The Exorcist" three times.

She is not a lonely girl and goes out frequently with friends. There is nothing strange about her except this. Do you believe she should have counseling? — Her Parents

Dear Parents: A 17-year-old who goes to the cemetery three times a week to visit the graves of people she never knew is unquestionably in need of professional help. I hope Molly will speak to her school counselor or a therapist of your choosing. Your family doctor can direct you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a switchboard operator in a very large and busy company. Every now and then some paranoid nut accuses me of listening in on her calls. It's always a woman — never a man. This makes me so mad I could chew carpet tacks.

Some of the operators I work with get the same kind of gaff. I hope you will tell your readers who really believe this nonsense that if they stood behind us for 15 minutes and saw the number of calls we handle, they'd apologize.

Can you imagine anything duller than listening to a lot of garbage about what their kids did over the weekend or what happened at the Smith's party or the Schwartz's Bar Mitzvah? I'd rather read a book.

Bid psychs club lead

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Some 40 years ago there was going to be an all-expert rubber bridge game at the Jacoby home. Harold Vanderbilt (the inventor of contract) was late and Mrs. Jacoby was drafted to play one rubber with her husband until the fourth arrived.

On what turned out to be the final hand of the rubber Jacoby improvised a bid that brought in an impossible grand slam for him. he sat North and was faced with the problem of what to bid over West's five-heart bid. He realized that if he could stop a heart lead his partner would wrap up seven spades. How could he stop it?

A cue bid followed by a seven-spade bid would be too obvious. Finally he solved his problem by just bidding seven spades. It was up to West to lead. He thought and thought some more. Vanderbilt arrived while he was thinking and was told to stay away from the table until the hand was finished.

It didn't take long. West decided that North was surely void of hearts. He led the king of clubs and Mrs. Jacoby had no trouble making all the tricks. 5 (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Phidian Art Club

The Phidian Art Club met this week to hear Mrs. R. E. Erickson speak on the "Discovery of America—Legend and Fact, A.D. 500-1600."

"This is a drama in which the sea is the setting and the characters are royalty, fishermen, navigators, and colonists," said Mrs. Erickson. She continued, "The urge to find a new passage to Cathay for precious metals and the lure of abundant fishing in the western Atlantic pulled the seamen westward toward what proved to be a new land."

"The earliest story which lies somewhere between fact and fiction," said Mrs. Erickson, "was that of St. Brendan, an Irish abbot of the fifth century who was a navigator. Norse sagas include tales of how Brendan and his seamen, searching for the promised land, reached Iceland in small frame vessels. They were called curraghs, and were covered with ox hides and caulked with ox tallow, and were sailed by hardy sailors," said Mrs. Erickson.

Though they did not reach America, she said, "three centuries after Brendan's death, raiding Vikings found Irish monks in Iceland. Irish artifacts have been found in Iceland but not on this continent. "From the ninth to the 12th centuries Scandinavia was the leading sea power, venturing to the Faroes by 800, to Iceland by 870, and to Greenland by 985. Newfoundland, or Vinland, as the Norse called their brief colony in North America, was the farthest outpost of their empire," explained Mrs. Erickson.

Mrs. Erickson described how these navigators without benefit of compass had reached these far away places. "They accomplished it by latitude sailing, a method used through the ages by all seamen. During the day they used a sun-board and in thick weather they sailed by guess," she said. "In 1960 a Norwegian archaeologist, Heige Ingstad, located a spot in Newfoundland which after years of summertime digging proved to be Vinland, where Leif Ericson had spent one winter and where members of his family founded a short-lived colony."

In 1497, inspired by Columbus, John Cabot, an Italian, decided to try to reach the Indies by a shorter route. Supported by Henry VII, Cabot and his largely English crew sailed from Bristol, England, and reached a large island which is now known as Belle Island. Cabot's ship, the Matthew, passed within five miles of Newfoundland, where Leif Ericson had tried to establish a colony in 1001. Despite a later failure, Mrs. Erickson said that John Cabot's first voyage was the herald and forerunner of the British empire in North America. Like Columbus, he never learned the significance and value of his discovery, said Mrs. Erickson.

She also told the club about the voyages of Verrazzano along the North American coast from 1524 to 1528. He stated emphatically in his writings that the coast between Florida and Newfoundland belonged to a completely new world.

"The voyages of Jacques Cartier far up the St. Lawrence River greatly advanced knowledge about the new continent. Along the river he met more than a thousand natives who greeted him with gifts. Cartier realized here, however, that another passage to China was just a dream," she said.

Mrs. Erickson described the glorious failure of Martin Frobisher, a Yorkshireman, who sailed north and west of Greenland hoping to find gold for this country. He thought the marcasite he brought to England was gold. He thought he could found a colony. But the snow, ice, and cold defeated him in all attempts.

The Indians of North America were said to number 900,000 at about the time of the Pilgrims. Mrs. Erickson commented that although at first friendly, the white man's erratic attitude and actions made them wary and finally fiercely defensive.

Another voyageur she mentioned was John Davis, who sailed north in what is now Baffin Bay and was unaware that he had reached the start of the Northwest passage.

To summarize her talk, Mrs. Erickson closed with a brief mention of the two Virginia colonies attempted by Sir Walter Raleigh, the permanent settlement of Jamestown colony, and finally the landing of the Pilgrims in New England in 1620.

Following the program, the president, Mrs. Thomas Hoye, conducted a business meeting. Mrs. Charles Berg, chairman of the Phidian Bicentennial Committee, reported on the progress made by her committee.

Mrs. Warren Walder presided at the lace-covered tea table which was centered with a Madonna sculpture within a Della Robbia wreath, and flanked by votive candles.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. C. R. Collins, Mrs. William Wolf, and Mrs. William Thompson.

Girl Scout Troop No. 220

Senior Girl Scout Troop No. 220 discussed plans for two money making projects during its recent meeting. They will sponsor a bazaar and bake sale. Homemade holiday and gift items, candy and baked goods will be sold. A popcorn ball sale will be the second project to be held in downtown Dixon, Dec. 20 all day.

The next project for the group will be a volunteer service at the Leydig Center. The girls discussed plans for a trip which they are saving for.

Accused in coat theft

Four law enforcement agencies combined in apprehending a Rockford man Thursday in connection with a Dixon burglary. Marvin Louis Lovings, 23, Rockford, is accused of stealing the coat of a 16-year-old girl who is a resident of Martha Hall Home. According to police reports, Lovings and three other persons entered the home under the pretense of asking for directions and using a bathroom. When they left a coat was reported missing.

Ogle County Sheriff's deputies received a report that Lovings had taken the coat. Authorities in Winnebago County were notified and the girl's coat was located in an upstairs closet of Lovings' Rockford residence.

Rockford Police and Winnebago County Sheriff's deputies turned Lovings over to Dixon Police who were holding him in jail here pending arraignment today.

The three other people reportedly with Lovings during the alleged incident have not been identified.

Financial institutions concerned over new amendments to state's unclaimed property law

By LENNY INGRASSIA

Financial institutions are becoming more concerned with recent amendments made to the Uniform Disposition of Unclaimed Property Act signed into law by Gov. Daniel Walker.

The primary change in the bill is the lowering from 15 to seven the number of years after which accounts will be declared "abandoned" and their balances turned over to the state.

By lowering the number of years to seven, state officials say an estimated $16 million is expected to funnel into state coffers from banks and savings and loan institutions across the state in the first year of implementation. The funds go directly to the State Pension Fund for public employees.

Under terms of the bill, little choice is left with financial institutions in reporting to the State Department of Financial Institutions the old accounts. Failure to do so can cost them $500 each day.

By definition an account is presumed abandoned unless the owner has within seven years increased or decreased the amount of the deposit or presented the savings passbook for the crediting of interest; corresponded in writing with the institution concerning the account within seven years or indicated an interest in the account as evidenced by a memorandum on file with the financial institution.

One problem has arisen with the lowering of years and has yet to be dealt with. Many certificates of deposit and savings certificates are often issued for periods of longer than 10 years and during that time no actual transaction occurs with the initial deposit.

Gov. Walker, in a message to the House, pointed to this discrepancy and asked for appropriate legislation to remedy the presumed abandonment of the savings certificates.

The act applies not only to banks and savings and loans but also to insurance corporations and other firms holding funds, belonging to others, for long periods of time.

The transfer of the presumed abandoned funds to the state is not as automatic as it may seem. Extensive efforts must first be made to locate the owner of the account where more than $25 is on deposit. This is often begun while the account is in its fifth or sixth year with no activity noted, according to local bank and savings and loan officials.

A spot check of local financial institutions indicated the abandoned accounts were at a minimum. All agreed the lowering of years creates more work in researching the account owner's location.

With the car's transmission in reverse, the auto darted across the driveway into Wade Street and up a neighbor's driveway, where it slammed into a 1974 Plymouth owned by Marvin J. Allen, 66, Creston.

Allen's car was pushed into his garage by the impact, causing an estimated $1,100 damage to the Plymouth and an undetermined amount of damage to the garage. Minor damage was reported to Grayborn's car. No tickets were issued.

'Marxism' flourishes in California

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Groucho Marx celebrated, if that's the right word, his 85th birthday on October 2. I dropped in on him a few days later and, although he's undeniably an elderly gentleman, the old Groucho is still in evidence.

The mustache is gray now. The cigar is gone. He walks slowly, speaks softly and sometimes indistinctly. And he is prone to the unreasonable moments typical of the aged.

But the wit is still present. In fact, it is difficult to get a straight answer out of him. It's as though his 85-year-old brain, trained in being funny for more than eight decades, is programmed to give funny answers and cannot do otherwise.

At one point, we sat down to lunch (a spinach pie and a salad).

"Is there anything you can't eat these days?" I asked.

"Yes," he said. "I can't eat people any more."

He's probably outgrown active lechery, that character he assumed so well for so long, but the habits of a life in comedy are difficult to outgrow. Today, he is surrounded by pretty young things.

Erin Fleming, who has been at his side for the past several years, is always hovering about. In the office in his home, there was a pretty girl typing away. Serving the luncheon was another, a tall blonde.

Miss Fleming, wearing a sweater with Groucho's face knitted in, was more like a mother than a mistress in her actions toward him.

He appeared, at first, in a bright red beret.

"You're not going to wear that to lunch, are you?" Miss Fleming said. It was more of a command than a question.

"Yes, I am," said Groucho, somewhat petulantly.

"No, you're not," she said. And she proceeded to take it off his head.

Later, she said he should clean his glasses. He made no move to do it, so she took his glasses off and cleaned them.

"Well," Groucho said, "since you took them off, you put them back."

So she did.

"You're awfully grouchy today," she said, as she stuck the glasses back on his face.

At another point during the lunch, Erin complained about the temperature in the house.

"It's cold in here, today," she said.

"No, it's not," said Groucho.

"Yes it is. You've got a suit on. I had to put a sweater on."

"I have a sweater on, too," he said.

And he did. A sweater and a suit. And, underneath the sweater, there was a yellow shirt with caricatures of the Marx Brothers on it. When I asked him about the shirt, he muttered a German phrase which, he said, meant "the whole family."

After lunch, Groucho took me on a tour of his house. He proudly pointed out autographed pictures from show business greats — Barrymore, Berlin, Coward — as well as photographs of his family, his mother and father and brothers.

"And this is my daughter and my grandchildren," he said. "They live on an artists' commune, 200 miles or so north of San Francisco. I don't see them very often. They better come see me soon, or they'll get no money."

He pointed out his collection of paintings. There was one that he had painted himself.

"That's the only painting I ever painted," he said. "After that, I quit."

Groucho says he watches a lot of television, goes to an occasional movie. He's a big fight fan, he says — "Muhammed Ali is the greatest fighter, perhaps even greater than Joe Louis" — and a big baseball fan.

Of the younger crop of comedians he admires Woody Allen most.

"He said a line I love," Groucho said. "He said, 'I'm not afraid of death — I just don't want to be there when it happens.'"

"That's a line you could have said," I remarked.

"Maybe. But he's the one that said it."

Groucho is working on two books. One is about his quiz show, which is still being rerun to respectable ratings. The other is his life story.

"Do you write yourself or do you dictate?"

"I dictate," he said. "I used to write but I lost my pen."

Groucho says he feels fine these days.

"I'm lucky," he said, several times. "I have my health."

He says he quit smoking cigars four years ago, he isn't allowed to drink and he has no sex life.

"Nevertheless," he said, "life isn't boring."

It's probably the young people he surrounds himself with that help him from being bored. Besides the covey of pretty girls, he had, as his house guest, actor Bud Cort, who was the star of Robert Altman's "Brewster McCloud." And he is obviously still loved by today's major young stars. The living room was dotted with birthday baskets of flowers. Among the senders, I noticed Liza Minnelli and Alice Cooper.

Recent polls indicate he's still a hero with young people. And he is still being honored, and loves to attend those ceremonies. Recently, The Friends of the Libraries at the University of Southern California honored him for his books (six, with two to come). And coming is a tribute, by the South Coast Repertory Theater.

"I'm happy," he said. "I sleep well and I've got my health. That's pretty good, isn't it?"

THE OLD GROUCHO still lurks behind the gray.

Networks are urged to highlight other cities

By JAY SHARBUTT

AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — This is a bit radical, but I think the networks each year should invite cities other than New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco to serve as the locales of new series.

This brainwave hit me the other day as I looked at the networks' new program schedules for January. Fun City, LA and the City by the Bay are amply represented as settings for new and returning programs.

But places like Worcester, Mass., Peoria, Ill., or even fabled Short Pump, Va., are noticeably absent from the lineup of TV locales.

True, Minneapolis hit the big time in 1970 as the setting for the hit "Mary Tyler Moore Show." Indianapolis and Milwaukee are the locales for two new situation comedies coming up this winter.

The rest of America? Well, Chicago is represented in "Good Times" and "The Bob Newhart Show," while the nation's 50th state is showcased in "Hawaii Five-O." But that's it. Television's Big Three still have most of the action.

The Los Angeles area is particularly laden with TV cops and gumshoes. It is there you'll find Cannon, Bronk, Joe Forrester, Harry O, Starsky and Hutch and the gang from "S.W.A.T.," "Police Woman" and "Police Story" keeping the streets safe for decent citizens.

In January, two more cops, the Blue Knight and Jigsaw John, will join LA's law-and-order crew. If there's a car crash, a fire or a natural disaster, the "Emergency" crew will give first aid.

All this is on a weekly basis. Every fourth week or so, Columbo also arrives, scratches his head, takes off his raincoat and solves a crime.

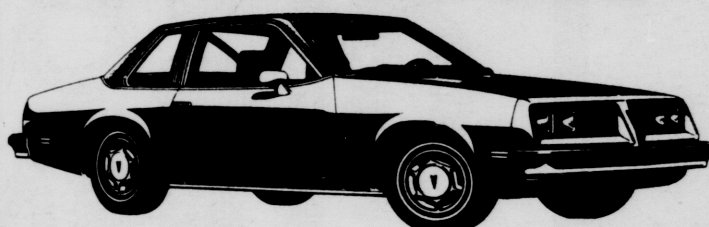

San Francisco is a bit lighter in crime-fighting. It now only has the cops in "Streets of San Francisco" pounding a weekly beat, but in February a New York cop will move there in a show called "Superstar."

One suspects he'll get fourth-week support from "McMillan and Wife."

Considering its size, New York is very light on law and order now. Kojak and Ellery Queen are the only weekly crime-solvers, with assists coming every fourth week from a gendarme called McCloud.

The business side of the news

Loan groups find Housing trends uncertain

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The savings and loan people, who like to remind you how much they've done to finance the houses of America, feel they need some understanding and perhaps some aid.

They are deeply concerned, for example, that the typical American family no longer can afford to purchase the typical new single-family home. They are worried about the deep social implications of this.

More to the point, they are concerned about the decisions this thrusts upon them. Their business is lending money to finance home ownership, but their first responsibility is to protect their customers' savings.

Builders, however, seem unable to bring housing costs down. Attempts to do so have been frustrated by rising prices of land, labor and materials, and often by old-fashioned, restrictive building codes.

There's another complicating factor: the American dream of a single-family home on its own green quarter-acre lives on. More than one financial institution was convinced it could change this aspiration, and failed.

That is, they tried to move young families into modern town house-style dwellings, but the young moderns interpreted modern to mean less.

They observed that town houses were connected, that they shared "party walls" and that above all, they were not distinctly separate houses on their own grassy plots.

The head of one savings and loan association relates how his company still owns a town house development in which it managed to reduce the price of a two-bedroom unit to about $20,000. There was little demand. It now rents, instead.

"Young couples still want the old-fashioned, single-family unit on its own plot," said the frustrated president of the association, which is situated in the Pacific Northwest. "They want what mom and dad had," he said.

Something has to give, he indicated, and you get the feeling that many other housing and finance people share that belief. Construction of new housing remains slow, interest rates remain relatively high, and prices are rising.

More than 8,000 delegates, spouses and exhibitors are gathered here for the 83rd annual convention of the U.S.

Simply providing for the usual, middle-class need for housing is risky enough during periods of economic confusion, they point out, but atop this they face a dilemma on how to finance low-income, inner city housing.

The savings and loan people have made a proposal: "We will in good conscience be able to risk the savings of our customers to finance such housing if the government will help."

How? Through federal guarantees. They propose that investments by them in blighted areas be insured to 80 per cent by the federal government.

PROGRAM LISTINGS FOR THURSDAY, DEC. 11

Reagan forced to quit commentary program

NEW YORK (AP) — Last week, when Ronald Reagan announced his presidential candidacy, he had to quit his job as a conservative commentator on a nationally-syndicated radio show called "Viewpoint."

Otherwise, stations airing his daily five-minute program would have to provide air time sought by other presidential candidates under the Federal Communications Commission equal-time rule.

But Harry O'Connor, whose Los Angeles company syndicates "Viewpoint," says the program is continuing on the air with guest commentators until a permanent replacement for Reagan is chosen.

He said this week and the next the speakers will be the former California governor's daughter, Maurine, TV star Art Linkletter, and retired Navy Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher, ex-skinner of the spy ship Pueblo.

Starting Dec. 8, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., whom ABC-TV has hired to comment on the Democratic presidential convention next year, will be the "Viewpoint" commentator for three weeks, he added. O'Connor, who called the program a forum for the conservative point of view, said Reagan began it on Jan. 20 this year.

He said the show evolved from discussions he'd had with actor Effram Zimbalist Jr., who also does a radio show for him, about the need for a daily radio program of conservative commentary.

O'Connor said he felt there should be something to counterbalance what he considers "the strong liberal viewpoints that we're getting not only from commentators but also from the networks."

He said while mulling over possible commentators for the show, Zimbalist said Reagan was a friend of his and might be ideal for the program. The actor called Reagan and found him "keenly interested" in doing the show when his term as governor expired, he said.

O'Connor said the program now is carried by stations he has under contract in more than 300 cities, and that since Oct. 20 the Mutual Broadcasting System has aired it in other cities.

He said when it appeared Reagan would seek the Republican presidential nomination, there were reports — all erroneous — that former President Nixon might replace Reagan on "Viewpoint."

O'Connor said he'd met with Nixon last September at the latter's home in San Clemente, Calif., and that the former president told him "he very much admired what Reagan had been able to accomplish on a daily five-minute radio show."

"And he felt radio was the strongest medium for him."

Nixon, who resigned from office last year after the Watergate scandal, now is writing a book about his years in office and preparing for a series of TV interviews with talk show star David Frost.

PROGRAM LISTINGS FOR TUESDAY, DEC. 9

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: Without going through a lot of red tape, what are the possibilities of calling a well-known actor? Would my call go through to him direct? What are the procedures for locating an actor? Where do I start? If I wrote to him, would my letter be thrown away? THERESA TUCK, Athens, Ga.

I must get dozens of letters a week, asking for phone numbers or addresses of stars. If I knew, I wouldn't tell. They're entitled to privacy, or at least privacy at home. Most have unlisted numbers and they guard those numbers, and their addresses, closely. After all, there are a lot of nuts running around loose these days. The odds against you finding out a star's phone number are astronomical. As for writing letters, send them in care of the network, if they are TV stars, or the studio that did their last film, if they are in movies. The letters are generally screened and the most interesting ones will be read by the star.

DEAR DICK: I was surprised to read that the actress Barbara Colby died. What did she die from? MRS. E.S., Schaghticoke, N.Y.

Miss Colby and a friend were shot to death in the street, after an acting class. It was one of those senseless crimes that seem to be all the rage these senseless days.

DEAR DICK: Are John Mills, Hayley Mills and Julia Mills related to each other? And are Pat Boone and Richard Boone brothers? FRANK R. CORRENTI, Kenner, La.

The Mills are related, the Boones are not. John Mills is the father of Hayley and Juliet (not Julia), but Pat and Dick are not even Boone companions.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me who was the actress that played the bionic woman on The Six Million Dollar Man. Will there be any future episodes with her playing in them? MARGARET OLSEN, Mobile, Ala.

That was the very beautiful Lindsay Wagner. And, yes, there will probably be more bionic woman stories—possibly, if all goes well (or badly, depending on how you view the project), even a series built around that character.

DEAR DICK: Lindsay Wagner, who plays on The Six Million Dollar Man, and Lee Crawford, who used to play on The Young and the Restless, look enough alike to be sisters. Are they related in any way? LINDA HENDRIX, Toronto, Ohio

No, they're not. Miss Wagner is totally sisterless.

DEAR DICK: Who is Mia Farrow's real mother? MISS DEAN, Tucson, Ariz.

Mia is the daughter of actress Maureen O'Sullivan. Her father, incidentally, was the late John Farrow, who was an important director in the '40s.

DEAR DICK: Is "The Texas Chain-Saw Massacre" really a true story? Do you think "Jaws" will ever be on television, and when? LORALEE BULGER, O'Leary, P.E.I., Can.

"The Texas Chain-Saw Massacre" was pure (well, not so pure) fiction. "Jaws" will probably be sold to TV, for a bundle—but not for some years yet. It's too hot a box office property at the moment. Chances are it will be re-released in a year or so, and then go the TV route.

Planned rail abandonment closely eyed

By BARRY HANSON
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Farmers, businessmen and local officials along 280 miles of Illinois freight lines slated for abandonment are closely watching developments in Springfield and Washington.

Under a federal plan to salvage a viable freight system from the Penn-Central and six other bankrupt railroads, several scattered lengths of track in the state could be shut down on Feb. 7.

That is the first day that Penn-Central trustees can halt service on those lines not included in Conrail, the federally-backed rail corporation to operate lines in the Northeast and Midwest.

But legislation is pending on both the state and federal levels which would clear the way either for government subsidies or the purchase of the scattered lengths of track by railroads that are still making money.

"A loss of service would have vast social, economic and environmental effects on a large portion of the state," according to the report of an Illinois House subcommittee studying the problem.

One of the subcommittee's recommendations was passage of legislation to provide state money to match federal funds available to keep those non-Conrail lines operating.

Those bills sailed through the House during the recently concluded fall session, but stalled in the Senate. The sponsor, Sen. Charles Chew, D-Chicago, chairman of the Transportation Committee, said he wanted a better look at the legislation before calling it for a vote.

Chew said in an interview that his committee will meet in Chicago Jan. 7 and that it would be possible to send the legislation to Gov. Daniel Walker when the General Assembly returns Jan. 14.

Meanwhile, in Washington, committees in the U.S. House and Senate are working separately on railroad legislation which includes subsidies for lines not included in Conrail.

Under the 1973 Regional Rail Reorganization Act, the federal government would provide 70 per cent of the cost of operating non-Conrail lines for two years if the state or local governments would put up 30 per cent.

Chances are good that the rail legislation finally sent to which Kramer says would make it more attractive for solvent railroads to pick up lines scheduled for abandonment.

But even if Congress and the President approve 100 per cent federal subsidies, state enabling legislation probably would be needed just to receive the money, Kramer said.

Chew emphatically denied published reports that he was holding up the bills in the Senate in retaliation against downstaters who opposed the override of Walker's school aid vetoes.

"We just hadn't gotten all the information we needed from Washington," Chew said.

"I think the bills will pass when we come back Jan. 14," he added.

One long line among the 280 miles of track not in Conrail runs from Lawrenceville north to Paris and west to Decatur. Other smaller segments are generally in central and Southern Illinois.

One industry nervously watching developments is Central Illinois Public Service Company (CIPS), which operates a coal burning power station at Hutsonville in Crawford County.

Company spokesman Kenneth Andres said more than 3,000 carloads of coal rumble along the Penn-Central tracks from Southern Illinois mines to Hutsonville each year. The line from Lawrenceville to Hutsonville is among those not included in Conrail.

"We're not sure what will happen," Andres said.

The company official told the Illinois House subcommittee that it would take 10,200 truckloads to move 3,000 rail carloads of coal and that this could be costly in wear and tear on highways.

He added that it could conceivably be cheaper to truck coal from Indiana rather than Southern Illinois.

Mine operators testified that the loss of rail service could result in completely shutting down some mines and laying off the workers.

Walker issues debate challenge to Howlett

By The Associated Press
Gov. Daniel Walker has challenged Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett to a series of debates, saying Howlett's refusal would be "an insult to the people of Illinois."

Earlier Howlett, picked by Democratic leaders to oppose Walker in the state's March 16 primary election, revealed he would not debate the governor.

"How can you debate a man who twists and bends and distorts the truth like Walker does?" Howlett was quoted as asking.

Walker's challenge Thursday came during a busy day of Illinois politics that included these developments:

—U.S. Sen. Henry M. Jackson announced he will enter the Illinois presidential primary in March.

—State Rep. Gerald Shea, Mayor Richard J. Daley's chief spokesman in the Illinois House, revealed he won't seek re-election.

—Roland Burris, an independent candidate for the Democratic nomination for comptroller, proposed an amendment to the Illinois Constitution requiring a referendum before any hike in the income or sales taxes.

—Joanne H. Alter, a trustee of the Chicago Metropolitan Sanitary District, said she'll continue her candidacy for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor. She called her snub Monday by regular Democratic party slatemakers "an affront to Illinois voters."

—Richard J. Doyle, 35, of Hoopston, state's attorney of Vermilion County, said Walker has asked him to run for attorney general in the Democratic primary against regular Democrat, state Sen. Cecil Partee.

Walker said Howlett was afraid to debate him on major issues facing the state.

"Refusal to debate is an insult to the people of Illinois, and it's asking the people to sign a blank check," Walker told a news conference at the Capitol in Springfield, one of six such appearances he made Thursday throughout the state.

Walker proposed an agenda for 52 debates in cities throughout the state with populations of 20,000 or more.

The schedule calls for the governor to make four appearances each week in scattered locations between Dec. 14 and March 13.

Jackson, 63, also appeared in several Illinois cities, saying he will focus his effort in Illinois' primary on winning convention delegates from downstate districts.

At a Chicago news conference after he had "a nice visit" with Daley, Jackson said he would not attempt to win convention delegates from the city.

Family's mystery illness blamed on chemicals

CHICAGO (AP) — Chemicals stored on a farm near Rockford are suspected as the mysterious source of pollution that has plagued the Martin Johnson family for the last 10 years.

Federal Environmental Protection Agency officials, probing pollution problems across the country, heard the Johnsons' story Thursday.

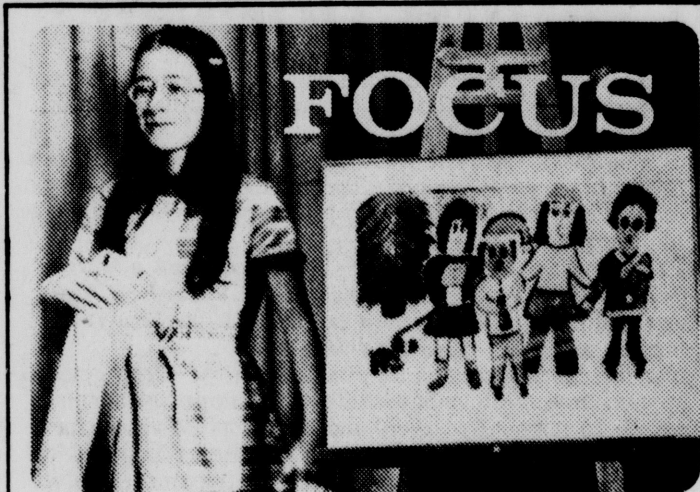

Attorney Bernard Reese Jr. said that during the past 10 years, all six members of the Johnson family have suffered recurrent and long-lasting stomachaches, as well as other symptoms of the hard-to-diagnose mercury poisoning. In addition, Reese said, one son, Donald, 14, shows signs of possible brain and nervous system damage.

The farm, five miles northwest of Rockford, adjoins property owned by contractor Walter Tipton where drums of industrial waste from a paint company and a wire plant formerly were stored.

Dennis J. Johnson, regional supervisor of field operations for the Illinois EPA, said he believes some of the toxic wastes either leaked or were dumped into an abandoned limestone quarry near the Johnson farm. The wastes are believed to have filtered into the groundwater and polluted the Johnsons' 40-foot well, he said.

Reese said the Johnsons first discovered the problem in 1972 when their well water began smelling of chemicals. They sued Tipton and the Valspar Corp., a Rockford paint firm, for damages, but the case has not been decided.

1975 Christmas Seals

This year's Christmas seals from the American Lung Association serve as a reminder that lung disease strikes children as well as adults. The seals are drawings contributed by elementary school children from each of the 50 states and four U.S. territories. The children did not know that they were designing Christmas seals. They were told to paint holiday pictures in art class to show what they like most about Christmas. The original paintings will be on exhibit in Washington, D.C. until January 4, 1976. Contributions to the Christmas seal campaign help provide funds for research and education programs to fight lung disease.

Park referendum in Rochelle Saturday

ROCHELLE — Voters in the Flagg-Rochelle Community Park District will go to the polls on Saturday to cast their ballots on a $1.2 million obligation bond issue referendum to build an indoor swimming pool community center.

The recreation building, which will house an all-purpose activity area, locker rooms, meeting room, park district office and storage, beside the indoor swimming-diving pool, will be built on park district-owned land lying along East Seventh Avenue, from the Kyt River to Caron Road.

Future plans call for an indoor tennis court, should this sport become more popular; a future handball court, and, on the western edge of the property, a skating pond are in the plans. There will be landscaping done and playground and picnic areas will be developed.

The polls will open at 6 a.m. and remain open until 6 p.m., with absentee ballots available at the park district office from 9 to 12 a.m. and from 1 to 4 p.m.

There are two voting places. All persons residing south of the Flagg Center Road will vote at the Rochelle City Municipal Building; those voters living north of Flagg Center Road will vote at the Hillcrest Village Hall.

Dixon varsity wrestlers

Sophomores to fill several weights

Wrestlers open tonight

With four returning lettermen as the nucleus of the squad, the Dixon Dukes varsity wrestling team will kick off its 1975-76 season with a pair of matches this weekend. The Dukes go to Rochelle today and then travel to Ottawa on Saturday.

Dixon finished 15-5-1 last year and ended third in the NCIC, third in the District and 10th at the Sectional. John Green and Steve Lybarger are the only senior lettermen out while the remaining pair of "D" winners are juniors Jim Magnafici and Gary Magnafici.

Several sophomores will be utilized to fill out the varsity squad because of a poor turnout of upper classmen. Head, varsity coach Ron Semetis gave some capsule comments on the various weight classes and who will fill the spots as follows:

98—Senior John Green will attempt to make this weight. John was 23-6-2 and the Most Improved Wrestler as a junior. Andy Allen seems to be the probable starter when Green is at 105. Green had the most takedowns last year with 30.

105—Junior Joe Green will attempt to certify at 105, but will wrestle 112 most of the season. Joe had a 3-2 record in varsity competition and was the La Salle Invitational champion.

112—Joe Green will complete at this weight most of the year. When Joe is at 105, a sophomore will wrestle in his place. Paul Roe seems to have the nod at this time.

119—Junior Jim Magnafici has won the 119-pound class. Jim was 12-1-1 as a sophomore in varsity competition. Jim has a fine take down and will easily improve on last year's record.

126—Several wrestlers are trying to win this position. Junior Mike Coissart seems to have the edge for the starting position. Mike was 6-6 last year. Sophomores Rick Jordan and Jeff Nagy also have a good chance in wrestling varsity this year.

132—Junior Gary Magnafici has sole possession of this weight. Gary is defending District champion and had a 5-1 varsity record in 1974. Gary was LaSalle Invitational and sophomore conference champion at 132. This past summer Gary placed sixth in the five-state tournament in Indianapolis, Ind. Gary could become a state contender this year. He has fine moves and is a good competitor.

138—Juniors Dan Frost and Steve Brandau will be competing for this weight. Steve was the sophomore conference champion in 1974 while Dan had several varsity victories as a sophomore. It will be difficult to predict the winner here.

145—Senior Steve Lybarger seems to have this weight all to himself. Steve had a 7-8 varsity record but wrestled very tough at times. He placed sixth in the five-State tournament in Indianapolis and is a good contender for conference and district championships this year. With some breaks, Steve could be a state contender.

155—Mike McDonald is the only entry with varsity experience at 155. Mike has all the abilities to be successful. His quickness and strength should enable him to be a conference champion.

167—There are no junior or senior wrestlers that weigh this much. The three weights of 167, 185 and heavyweight will be filled by sophomore wrestlers. Tim Ford seems to have the nod at 167. Tim had a sophomore record of 1-1 as a freshman.

185—Sophomore Tim Brandenburg is all alone at 185. His lack of a practice partner may hurt him in gaining valuable varsity experience. Tim had a 14-4 record as a freshman.

HWT—Doug Rowland at 245 pounds has good size to compete at heavyweight. He will be challenged by Mark Grossman for the varsity position. Doug won the Dixon Freshman Tournament last year and is expected to experience a lot of varsity competition this year.

The Dukes open their home season next weekend with Sterling on Friday plus Rockford East and Guilford on Saturday. Other home matches will be the Dixon Invitational on Dec. 20, Newman on Jan. 8, Princeton and Galesburg on Jan. 16, East Moline Jan. 17, Rock Falls on Jan. 22, plus the Sectional on Feb. 20-21.

Away matches will be at Freeport on Dec. 18, the Morton Invitational on Jan. 10, Mendota Jan. 23, Clinton Invitational Jan. 24, La Salle Jan. 29, Moline Jan. 31, the NCIC at Sterling on Feb. 6-7 and the Rock Falls District on Feb. 13-14.

What is the fate of Sox?

CHICAGO (AP) — The fate of the Chicago White Sox lies mired in muddy financial, legal and even political waters, with everyone from Mayor Richard J. Daley to entertainer Danny Kaye splashing in them.

Daley reacted sharply Thursday to the American League's rejection of a purchase offer by a group headed by Bill Veeck which would have kept the team in Chicago. The mayor, a White Sox fan since 1910 who still lives within earshot of the ballpark organ, said the city would do everything it could to retain the team.

The White Sox, Daley said, "are as much a part of Chicago as the Water Tower or the Art Institute, and we are going to work hard to keep the White Sox here where they belong."

While stating flatly that the team would be in Chicago next year, Daley declined to discuss any concrete plans for financing the shaky franchise.

In rejecting Veeck's offer on financial grounds, the league gave the flamboyant promoter a Wednesday deadline for raising an additional $1.2 million in solid capital. Veeck's original proposal, which was endorsed by current Sox owner John Allyn, provided for the purchase of an 80 per cent interest in the franchise through a $3.75 million bank loan and $4.8 million in cash. Allyn would retain a 20 per cent interest in the club and would be kept on as a consultant for 10 years.

The AL owners rejected the offer because all but $720,000 of the cash would be raised through the sale of subordinated debentures—the equivalent of issuing IOUs. "There was a feeling," said AL President Lee McPhail, "that Mr.

Veeck's original proposal contained too much debt and not enough equity."

While insisting that the owners want Veeck back in the league, McPhail said they felt his original plan would only lead the club back into debt problems.

The financially-pressed Allyn, meanwhile, said that if the deal with Veeck falls through his only alternative will be to sell the team to Seattle baseball interests. Those interests, who include Kaye and his business partner, Les Smith, have taken encouragement from the rejection of Veeck's offer.

Kaye, who did not attend the Cleveland AL meeting while Veeck's first proposal was pending, now says he will attend next week's baseball meetings in Hollywood, Fla.

While unpopular in Chicago, a White Sox move to Seattle would eliminate one AL problem—a lawsuit filed against the league by the state of Washington over transfer of the short-lived Seattle Pilots to Milwaukee in 1970.

The move, however, also would create an AL vacuum in Chicago, something that Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley says league officials could not tolerate. As far as filling that vacuum with his own team, though, he shot down the persistent rumor that he would move the A's to his home town. "I don't care what others have said," Finley insisted Thursday, "I have never said I would move my club to Chicago. I'm set in Oakland and have no intentions of leaving."

Daley, meanwhile, has met with Veeck, and presumably with his own influential friends in Chicago finance.

Dukes face Hubs in home opener

The Dixon varsity basketball team will try to even its season record at 2-2 when the Dukes open their home schedule at 8 p.m., today, against the Rochelle Hubs.

It will also mark the first NCIC game of the campaign for Dixon. The Dukes have a 1-2 record after upsetting Auburn and losing to Freeport and the host team in the Sterling Thanksgiving round-robin tournament last week.

Rochelle, on the other hand, has a 2-1 slate and a third-place finish in the King Korn Tournament at Sycamore. The Hubs began with a 64-62 decision against DeKalb, got beat 71-55 by Sycamore and then edged Belvidere 64-62.

Leading the scoring parade for Rochelle in the three games was 6'4" senior forward Steve Sawills, who dumped in 20 points versus DeKalb, 10 against Sycamore and 19 against Belvidere for a total of 49. The other Hubs wing, 6'4" junior Tom Hall accounted for 30 markers with eight versus DeKalb, nine in the Sycamore contest and 13 against Belvidere.

Jay Friestad, a 6'5" center, tallied 26 points all on field goals. Friestad had 14 points against DeKalb, eight versus Sycamore and four against Belvidere. The starting guards for Rochelle will be 6'0" junior Mike Rand and 6'0" junior Jim Babb.

Rand had 39 points with 10 against DeKalb, 11 versus Sycamore and 18 against Belvidere. Babb got 10 versus DeKalb, four against Sycamore and ended with two points versus Belvidere. All the markers were from the field.

The Hubs ended with a total of 183 points for an average of 61 per contest while giving up 195 or 65 a game. Sawills led the rebounders with 13 grabs each against DeKalb and Belvidere.

Dixon will probably be without the services of 6'3" senior center Guy Price who turned his ankle at practice on Wednesday. Opening for the Dukes will be Dave Zinnen and Doug Hipple at guards, Randy Donegan at center and forwards John Kemp and John Ortgiesen.

Kemp finished the Sterling action with 64 points with games of 24, 18 and 22. Hipple got 10 points in each contest to end with 30 while Zinnen also collected 30 with a high of 18 versus Auburn. Donegan got 15 markers. Ortgiesen ended with 14 points in the three games.

All of the other area schools open conference action tonight. Games in the Mid-Northern will be Oregon at Forreston, Mt. Morris at Byron and Polo at Stillman Valley. Ohio goes to Annawan to start Little Eight action while Amboy travels to Newman to begin the Three Rivers season.

Franklin Center is a Leaf River and Durand at Ashton in the Upstate Illini while Earlville visits Paw Paw in the Little 10. Walnut goes to Wyoming in the Blackhawk.

Black Hawks lose

By The Associated Press
Maybe Dave Schultz wants Chicago Coach Billy Reay to get his name straight.

Schultz scored two first-period goals Thursday night to boost the Philadelphia Flyers to a 5-2 National Hockey League victory over the Black Hawks.

But Reay, whose team had tied the Flyers in their two previous meetings this season, continued to voice his low opinion of the Philadelphia winger.

"It's the first time I've seen him earn his pay," Reay said after the game. "But I'm still not worried about him."

Reay has been saying for several seasons that Schultz lacks skill and fights too much. And to add to the insult, the coach refers to Schultz as "Schwartz."

The victory shattered a 15-game unbeaten string for Chicago, and extended Philadelphia's winning streak to seven.

In other NHL games Thursday night, Montreal stopped St. Louis 4-1, Boston edged Washington 3-2, the New York Islanders crushed Pittsburgh 6-1 and the New York Rangers and Buffalo skated to a 6-6 tie.

Chicago had taken a 1-0 lead in the first period on a 35-foot slap shot by John Marks. But the Flyers tied it about eight minutes later on a power-play goal by defenseman Andre Dupont.

Schultz' goals made it 3-1, and Philadelphia increased the edge to 4-1 on a 15-foot shot by Rick MacLeish. Tom Bladen slammed in the Flyers' fifth goal in the third period.

Canadiens 4, Blues 1
Goals 55 seconds apart by Yvan Cournoyer and Murray Wilson highlighted a three-goal second period that boosted Montreal over St. Louis. The Canadiens now have won seven of their last eight games while St. Louis has dropped five straight. Pete Mahovich and Doug Jarvis scored the other Montreal goals while Red Berenson spoiled Canadiens goalie Ken Dryden's bid for a shutout with an unassisted goal in the third period.

Rangers 6, Sabres 6
Rene Robert scored his second goal of the game with 6½ minutes remaining in the third period to lift Buffalo into its tie with the New York Rangers. Phil Esposito scored twice for New York. The Rangers took a 4-2 lead in the opening period, but Buffalo came back to tie it at 5-5 on Jerry Korab's 80-foot shot.

Bruins 3, Capitals 2
Al Sims scored twice in the third period to lift Boston to its victory over Washington. The frustrated Capitals had only 13 shots on goal, and only two in the final period. Ace Bailey gave Washington a first period lead before defenseman Sims tied it at 3:32 of the final period. He scored again at 11:09 to put Boston ahead.

Center on Monday. Dixon also took the junior varsity match with a 20-14, 16-20 and 20-15 decision. Sue Johnson had eight points, Kelly Beard five, Deanne Harrison and Carmen Switzer three each while Lynn Maves got one in the first game for Dixon.

Sue Galloway and Julie Sheffer had four apiece while Debra Smith and Ellen Cooperider had three each for Sterling. The home team copped the second game as Galloway had 10 points, Smith four, Sheffer three, Patty Jacobs two and Kelly Anderson one.

Beard got six, Lori Heeg four, Betty Contreras and Gail Turner two each and Harrison one for Dixon. Beard, Heeg and Johnson got five points each in the decisive third game. Missouri family to give gospel concert

The Singing Envoys of St. Louis, Mo., will present a Gospel Concert Sunday at the Dixon Assembly of God, 1006 Hemlock Avenue, in the Morning Worship service beginning at 10:15 a.m.

This group is the fulfillment of a dream and desire of Chuck and Dot Carpenter to serve the Lord as a family unit in the ministry of music. Chuck and Dot, with their four children, purpose to uplift and glorify the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and to help others to know the joy of being born again.

At the age of 16, Chuck led the singing and directed the choir for his father, who pastored the Macomb Baptist Church in Mt. Clemens, Mich. Chuck also played trombone in the Air Force Band.

With their oldest son, Larry, at the piano, the entire family blend their voices and talents in making "a joyful noise unto the Lord."

The Rev. D. O. Von Ahnen, pastor of the Assembly of God, invites the public to hear The Singing Envoys, who have a profound evangelical, interdenominational ministry appealing to everyone.

Prior to his pastorate there, he worked with the Eskimo Missions at Teller, Alaska, for three years. He previously served the congregation at Washington for two years, and at Elizabeth for 3½ years.

Both Rev. Luebke and his wife, Margaret, are natives of Oshkosh, Wis., and are the parents of four children, Aaron, 16; Brian, 14; Craig, 13, and Drede, 9. CROP proceeds continue to rise

An increase in unexpected gifts from the Franklin Grove area has made necessary an upward estimate in anticipated CROP Hunger Walk proceeds from over $5,000 to approximately $6,400. According to Hunger Walk public relations chairperson, the Rev. Tom W. Shepherd, the Franklin Grove check delivered to CROP Walk finance chairperson, David Harris, was for $3,808, or over half of the expected total of $6,400. The other part of the total is from the Dixon-Amboy walks and from gifts mailed to the bank directly by donors.

Initially, from $2,100 to $2,300 was expected from the Franklin Grove walk. However, according to Church of the Brethren pastor, the Rev. Robert Roller, a good number of the walk sponsors added to their pledges promised the walkers. One sponsoring family gave $350 to walkers. One Franklin Grove youth had $57 pledge for every mile walked.

Asked to explain the excellent response from the Franklin Grove area, the Rev. Mr. Roller noted that CROP has had strong support from farmers and other citizens of the area since its inception following World War II. "These people know how effective CROP, through Church World Service, is in getting help to suffering people. They believe in self-help programs, and CROP provides much of its aid on a self-help basis. Much of the CROP leadership in Lee County over the years has come from the Franklin Grove region," commented the pastor.

Leading all walkers in the total number of sponsors was Rebecca Shepherd, Dixon, with 71 sponsors who pledged approximately $375. A substantial number of Hunger Walk participants were carrying between $35 and $50 a mile in pledges.

Hunger Walk sponsors had the opportunity to designate gifts to other church-related relief agencies, and some did. The World Relief Commission of the National Association of Evangelicals will be sent $120 by the CROP national office. Lutheran World Relief will receive $85, and Catholic Relief Services will be sent $34.

At the November evaluation meeting held in the Amboy Cooperative Extension Service office, the CROP Walk committee expressed appreciation for the generosity of so many people who helped make this year's collections the best in many years in Lee County. Extension Service staff members Kathy Augustine and Wayne Wubben were most helpful in coordinating work with 4-H groups and young homemakers. Church, school and community groups in all three communities had a large part in the success of the walk. It was proposed, during the evaluation, that roadside trash be picked up by walkers during the 1976 Hunger Walk.

Clubs, churches, other groups, and individuals who desire more information about CROP and Church World Service, or who want sources for audio-visuals and other supplies on world hunger should contact the Rev. Tom W. Shepherd, First Christian Church, 123 Hennepin St., Dixon.

FAITH SEES PROMISE IN THE WHITE WORLD OF WINTER

When Winter's sun with slanting rays of light
Reveals a world arrayed in glistening white,
Where barren trees and snow-clad peaks beyond
Are mirrored in an ice-encrusted pond:
Some see it only as the year grown old,
The earth devoid of life, so dead and cold;
A dormant land where nothing seems to grow
And future hopes lie buried in the snow.
But those of faith see beauty in this scene:
Through Church they know that one day it will mean
A miracle that God will always bring:
The new rebirth of life that's known as Spring.

— Gloria Nowak

"While the earth remaineth,
seedtime and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night
shall not cease."
— Genesis 8:22

If Winter comes, can Spring be far behind?
— Percy Bysshe Shelley

Exhibits colored slide of purported Loch Ness monster

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — A researcher has shown a photographic slide of a rust-colored object purported to be the legendary Loch Ness monster. The object appeared to have two front appendages, a long neck and a head.

The slide showing was the latest in a series of revelations both in the United States and Great Britain in recent weeks concerning a group of pictures taken underwater by an American photographic team last June at Loch Ness in Scotland. The team was headed by Boston patent attorney Robert Rines, who is also dean at the Franklin Pierce Law Center in Concord. He showed the slide to a group of about 50 students and friends Wednesday night. The slide depicted an object with distinct features, including the frontal appendages, a trunk Rines said was 12 feet broad and a neck Rines said was 8 to 10 feet long.

"We think it will electrify the world," Rines said. He said there were other, clearer photographs, some of which were shot at the considerably closer range of 4 feet. He said the monster was "looking right at us with its mouth open."

Rines showed the slide in Concord two days after an announcement was made in London that a scientific symposium scheduled for Dec. 9 and 10 to see Rines' pictures was canceled because of what the sponsors called excessive publicity in Britain.

First word of Rines' discovery and photos came on Nov. 22 in a copyright story in the Boston Globe. Since then, a number of scientists who have seen one or more of the pictures, have commented publicly. Most have praised the clarity of the pictures.

Wednesday night's showing of one of the slides was the first to a lay audience. Rines said the slide was taken by an underwater camera at a depth of 45 feet with a strobe light.

Rines was angered by the publicity given the photographs, particularly in the British press, and had asked that the description of the slide shown Wednesday night not be made public.

A spokesman for Rines emphasized in a telephone interview that Rines and other members of the Academy of Applied Science — the Boston group which undertook the Loch Ness photographic expedition — were leaving it up to the scientific community to determine exactly what the objects photographed are. British naturalist Sir Peter Scott, who has seen the complete set of Rines pictures, announced in London on Monday the cancellation of the symposium of eminent scientists who were to examine the photos.

The decision, "in no sense reflects in the smallest degree on the nature of the evidence or the integrity of those who obtained it," said Scott, chancellor of Birmingham University.

Scott told reporters shortly after word of the photos leaked last month that the Rines photographs helped convince him the Loch Ness monster is a living prehistoric reptile which may be 40 feet long.

This week, Prof. Herbert J. Howe, a Purdue University paleontologist, said he believed the monster may be a prehistoric reptile dating 70 million years. He said the Rines photographs may reveal the monster is a plesiosaur or ichthyosaur, types of reptiles believed extinct for more than 50 million years.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Don't make winning or being the best at something so important today that you'll behave so as to be offensive to others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Be very selective of those whom you choose to pal around with today. An erratic companion could cause you some problems.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
You have a tendency today to try things before taking the time to evaluate the consequences. Don't be in such a rush.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Business conditions are exceptionally tricky for you today. Handle your affairs prudently. Avoid debit spending.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Usually you're fairly easy to get along with. Today you're not likely to be as co-operative as you should be. Stubbornness doesn't become you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
If you feel a bit uptight today, it's probably because you've given yourself too much to do and not enough time to do it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
An interesting day for you socially, but you're apt to experience some complications if you fraternize with the wrong group.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Harmony at home will be in precarious balance today. Be careful not to stir up an old issue that's best left forgotten.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Be careful if traveling today, especially on short normally routine hops. It's no big deal if you're a little late.

Bicentennial special

Should Indians rejoice or should they cry?

EDITOR'S NOTE — Thousands of dollars are being made available to America's Indians to observe the Bicentennial. The question is how to celebrate the nation's 200th birthday, with joy or bitterness.

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

American Indians are divided over whether to ignore the nation's 200th birthday, oppose celebrations, or use the Bicentennial to help preserve what's left of their own culture.

Of those tribes choosing to participate, some are planning such obvious tourist come-ons as singing and dancing. Many others, however, are planning events they hope will endure beyond 1976.

"Indians are on the verge of losing their history and their culture," says Wayne Chittin, a Blackfoot. "If we can use the Bicentennial to get people to help us save it, all America is richer."

Chittin is urging tribes to observe the Bicentennial. He notes that state commissions have set aside more than $2 million for about 100 Indian projects.

Those boycotting the Bicentennial are caustic about their reasons.

"Who would want to participate in the 200th year of the rip-off of our country?" asks Grace Thorpe, a law student and legislative aide to a senator.

"If the government would say, 'okay, we'll honor all your old treaties on water and fishing rights and we'll give back land that was stolen,' that would give the Indians something to celebrate," said Miss Thorpe, the daughter of Jim Thorpe, the famous Indian athlete. She is from the Sac and Fox tribe of Oklahoma.

Chittin is helping tribes obtain private and public funds for such Bicentennial observances as a conference on Indian aging to determine why the average Indian lives to only 45 and a national Indian rodeo. He says the rodeo, bringing together the champions of 30 to 40 reservation rodeos, would be the main Indian festival for 1976.

The Bureau of Indian Affairs takes no official position whether the estimated half-million Indians under government supervision should participate in the Bicentennial.

Last year, the BIA furnished $300,000 directly to the tribes to support their own varied festivals. This year, Clydia Nah-woosky, a Cherokee, is helping the BIA put together some nationally oriented Bicentennial projects for $300,000.

Ms. Nahwoosky, who prefers that designation, now hopes the BIA can underwrite at least three programs: a traveling exhibition of some of the valuable Indian painting and sculpture now on display in Washington, a series of readings from Indian literature, and a series of videotapes of tribal activities.

"Some tribes might want to tape their economic development projects or their attitudes on development," she said. "Others might want to tape data on Indian medicines. The Crows might want to film their annual celebration with more than 300 teepees and hundreds of horses and people of all ages."

Many Indians say, however, that dozens of the major tribes are too busy protecting their land, water and mineral rights in court cases to get worked up about the Bicentennial — except negatively.

Mike Chosa, an Ojibway from Wisconsin, said urban Indians from his area haven't patronized Bicentennial activities because it is "a corporate showcase and we don't have any corporate ties."

Stewart Jamison, a Seneca who directs economic development for the National Congress of American Indians, said the threat to Indians' water rights will grow with the new emphasis on excavating Western coal.

"Water is needed to develop these coal resources and our water is being illegally siphoned off or polluted with industrial waste," Jamison said.

Around the country, there are more than 150 land rights cases still being considered by the Indian Claims Commission, 25 years after the cutoff date for filing grievances.

Doctor Says:

Ulcer chances diminish

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB— I had a bleeding ulcer perforate a year ago and had two-thirds of my stomach removed. What are my chances of the ulcer returning? The acid-stimulating nerves to my stomach were cut when I had my surgery.

I can eat nearly anything with no bad sick spells. However, I worry a lot about the chances of the ulcer returning. I would really appreciate any information you can give me.

DEAR READER— I'm happy to tell you that your chances of having a recurrence of your ulcer are quite small. In a combined series of patients from different hospitals studied for over eight years, less than three per cent with the same operation you had developed a recurrence.

Most ulcer patients who are not bleeding and don't have an obstruction or perforation can eat most foods. It is apparently not too important what such a patient eats as long as they eat regularly. The food helps to neutralize the acid digestive juice.

The most important changes in habits for the ulcer patient include avoiding foods or beverages that contain caffeine. This drug stimulates the stomach to form excess acid digestive juice. So, you should not drink coffee (you can use decaffeinated brands), tea, colas or cocoa and should avoid chocolate. The other beverage that is a real no-no is alcohol. It too stimulates the stomach to produce massive amounts of acid digestive juice leading to ulcers.

Finally, you and anyone else with any history of ulcers or ulcer-like problems should not use tobacco in any form.

Follow these directions even if you have had surgery, and you will probably not have any trouble again.

DEAR DR. LAMB— My mother read somewhere that deep knee bends tore out the ligaments in a person's knees. My friend and I have been doing deep knee bends to reduce our thighs with adequate results. Could you tell us if it is bad for us?

DEAR READER— There is some danger that as the knee is bent to the maximum amount under weight that you may put too much stress on structures in the knee joint. However, many people do deep knee bends and never have a problem.

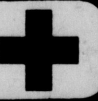

An alternative is to change your method. Instead of doing a full deep knee bend, kneel on one knee with the foot of the other leg forward and knee bent to a right angle. Then as you rise up lift your weight with the front leg. This will put a little more pull on your thigh muscles, but it will avoid overbending of the knee joint.

Then kneel on the other knee and lift with the other leg. In general this is a very satisfactory and safe way to do knee bends.

At home in the colonies

On the eve of revolution America was a rich and undisturbed land whose virgin vistas called out to men with fruitful promise. This was a country of big sky, undefined waters and boundless opportunity. So trackless was America west of the cities that years might pass before two men glimpsed the same wooded glen or valley.

Forests in that era were rich with northern elms, birches and long-standing oaks. They bore a totally different character than the woods of today, heavily planted with the omnipresent pine. Then a man might shoot his own game, although neither schooled in stealth nor expert marksmanship. Canvasback ducks, busily gorging themselves on wild celery, gathered thick along the banks of the Susquehanna and Potomac rivers. Men talked matter-of-factly of shoals of perch so plentiful in Tiber Creek that a fisherman could gather a fine mess by firing a shotgun into them.

Pheasant, partridge, pigeon, turkey, squirrel, rabbit, crab and oysters came regularly to colonial tables. Deer, however, had been wantonly slaughtered by burning great stretches of forest, and by 1800, venison would be considered a delicacy. Far-flung communities chequered the wilderness. Breaking out of the burly woods with busy and businesslike exuberance, they greeted travellers with a sudden flash of color, the scent of freshbroke sod, ripening hay and the song of flails at work in the fields.

A generation removed from the Revolution, Pennsylvania chronicler George Lippard describes Germantown, one such typical village in the year 1777.

"The roofs of the ancient village, extending in one unbroken line along the great northern road, arose gray and massive in the sunlight, as each corniced gable and substantial chimney looked forth from the shelter of the surrounding trees."

Inside the houses of Germantown, comforts were sparse. Many walls were only a homely coat of plaster. Joists and crossbeams showed in every ceiling, scoured white and planed smooth. Wallpaper and painting were rare save in the homes of the moderately well-to-do. General Neville's Pennsylvania home, for instance, was remarkable because it was furnished with such marvels as carpets, mirrors, pictures and prints, and an eight-day clock. Furniture was built for utility. Contrary to current fashion, almost everything sat well off the floor on stout legs. Chippendale sideboards, bureaus, bedsteads, cabinets and dressing cases were set a foot high in tidy fashion.

Metal gutters projected from almost every home to the center of the street. Much to the distress of passers-by, this battery of gutters resembled Niagara Falls in rainy weather.

Cellars and garrets hung redolent with dried herbs. Bins of apples, potatoes, turnips, beets and parsnips were marshaled in swelling rows. There were hogheads of corned beef, barrels of salt pork, tubs of hams being salted in brine, tunnekins of salt shad and mackerel, firkins of butter, kegs of pigs' feet, tubs of souse, kilderkins of lard. Stout racks bulged with barrels of cider, vinegar, and sometimes beer, rum and a pipe of Madeira. On a long swing shelf sat tumblers of spiced fruit, and "rolliches," headcheese and strings of sausages — all German delicacies that recall Benjamin Franklin's remark, "I saw few die of hunger; of eating, one hundred thousand."

A visitor from the northernmost American settlements, like Maine, where the fundamental comfort of glass windows was unknown until 1745, might well envy his relatives and connections to the south. But there was little pressure to keep up with the Joneses, if only because the Joneses — or Delanceys, Stuyvesants and Carters — were so remote. To reach the burgeoning cellars and groaning boards of Pennsylvania, or to plunge even deeper into the tidewater and plantation country of Maryland and Virginia, a man had to traverse a wilderness.

The hardships of inland travel reached a point of downright peril. Roads were interrupted by large streams, rivers and tidal waters. Travellers, carriages and skittish horses were crowded aboard flimsy ferries.

Coffeepots like this one, with the handle located on the side, were frequently found in the colonial kitchen.

Londoners suffering through doctor strike

LONDON (AP) — A surgeon saved a woman's life by operating on her virtually single-handed after the surgical team at his hospital said their eight-hour day was over.

A truck driver with a broken foot drove around northwest London in pain for three hours looking for a hospital that would take him in. Three said they were not handling casualties. The fourth he visited rushed him into the accident ward.

A London ambulance crew drove around London with an injured man for an hour before it found a hospital where doctors would examine him.

Another ambulance crew hauled the body of an accident victim around for an hour before they found a doctor to certify the death.

St. Bartholomew's, London's oldest and most famous hospital, is turning away 100 patients a day because its skeleton staff of doctors and nurses cannot treat them, a spokesman said.

These were just a few of the incidents Wednesday as Britain's National Health Service, the state-run system of socialized medicine, struggled with a week-old slowdown by half the service's 19,000 junior hospital doctors refusing to work more than a basic 40-hour week.

The junior doctors, backbone of the hospital staffs, are protesting the Labor government's new pay contract.

People in the news

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Dionne Warwick and husband Bill Elliott have been granted a divorce after 10 years of marriage.

Miss Warwick, 34, told Superior Court Judge Leopoldo Sanchez on Wednesday that her marriage had irreparably broken down.

Elliott, 41, a drummer and actor, filed the suit for dissolution of the marriage last June 3. Miss Warwick's manager, Paul Cantor, said Elliott is seeking $5,000 a month in support fees. He has already been paid $10,000 to cover various costs. In his suit he listed his income as $500 a month and hers as $100,000 a month.

A community property trial is expected to be held next year. Miss Warwick will have temporary custody of the couple's two sons, David, 6, and Damon, 2.

sentence given his assistant, Thaddeus Kobrznyski, and the 3-year sentence handed an East German woman, Helga Neukirchner, must be served.

Meeker, 33, of Hartford, Conn., flew 11 East Germans from Czechoslovakia until border guards stopped him on Aug. 17. Meeker escaped but Kobrznyski and Mrs. Neukirchner were caught.

If Meeker should ever return to Czechoslovakia, he would have to serve the sentence upheld by the three-member regional court panel.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Elvis Presley is back on stage after a bout with fatigue, but this time he's taking it just a bit more slowly.

At age 40, the rock 'n roll singer has orders from his doctor to take it easy. The hips that shook so wildly and shocked an older generation move in a more casual manner now.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television entertainer Johnny Carson has received an offer of $1 million to appear in a motion picture version of author Irving Shaw's new book, "Night-works."

Shaw was a guest Tuesday on Carson's "Tonight Show" and talked about the book, which is about a down-and-out resident of a sleazy hotel.

Liquid cooling takes the heat off high-performance snowmobiling

• 340 and 440cc reed-valve engines are up front for better handling

• CD ignition and surface-gap plugs provide sure-fire starts.

Liquid cooling improves efficiency by reducing heat buildup. And it muffles noise levels, too. The 32-inch wide ski stance and longer "wheelbase" provide added stability. Disk brakes give fade-free stops. Slide-rail suspension. Black with silver panels.

Stirs up a storm with race-inspired styling

• Front-mounted 340 or 440cc reed-valve engine

• CD ignition and surface-gap plugs for foul-free starts

If you demand stability and cross-country endurance in a sled, Cyclone is the machine for you. Wide 32-inch ski stance and longer "wheelbase" give stability on hills and switchbacks. Disk brakes provide sure-footed stops. Slide-rail suspension. Green with black panels.

Now Open Friday 'Til 8:30 P.M.

Low-Cost Suits

For warmth on the trail at bargain prices, check these one-piece suits. Available in black nylon, they feature 6-oz. insulation, removable hood, and adjustable belt.

Riding Mower with Snow Blade

A John Deere Riding Mower makes light-snow removal fast and easy. Choose from models in 6 or 8 horsepower. Then add this 38-inch alloy-steel blade. The rubber squeegee "cutting edge" helps prevent damage to sidewalks and driveways. And it acts as a shock absorber by reducing impact when the blade strikes an object. Angles left or right. Lifts for easy transport.

John Deere Toys

John Deere Action Toys make playtime more fun. And, they're built to last. Riding tractors to put-together kits. See the full line soon.

Flashlights, Lanterns

John Deere Flashlights and Lanterns are formed of durable, high-impact plastic. They feature bulb shock absorber, unbreakable lens.

Snow Blowers

Three fully winterized models. The 5- and 7-hp models have a 26-inch cut. The 8-hp has a 32-inch cut. All have five forward speeds, plus a reverse gear, and safety clutch.

High-Pressure Washers

Electric current and cold water are all you need to put a no-scrub cleaning machine to work. Four models with nozzle pressures from 500 to 1,100 psi.

Keep Batteries Powered Up With A John Deere Charger

You can keep batteries at peak charge or boost-start engines with a John Deere Charger. Choose from four models. All have a safety thermal cutoff switch, heavy-gauge steel case, color-coded terminal grips, easy-to-read ammeter, and detailed operating instructions on the case. All John Deere Chargers are UL and CSA approved.

Put Warmth Where You Want It... With A John Deere Space Heater

Three models are available to heat machine sheds, workshops, cabins... anywhere 115-volt current is available. Chrome handles and easy-rolling wheels make these heaters truly portable. All burn kerosene or No. 1 or No. 2 fuel oil.

WANT TO BUY ANTIQUES

ATTENTION DEALERS & COLLECTORS
 Midwest's largest antique mail order dealer buying complete estates or antique collections for CASH. D. Shiaras's Question and Answer Period On Antiques has been read weekly by millions of readers around the world for over a decade. D. Shiaras, Route 3, Box 66, Grand Detour, Illinois 61021. Phone 652-4278.

QUESTION & ANSWER PERIOD

QUESTION— Mr. Shiaras, we have inherited a large U.S. and foreign stamp collection. Would you be interested in purchasing it?

ANSWER— Definitely yes! 1. Send me a general description. 2. If I can use your stamps I will have you send them to me registered and insured for quick appraisal and offer. 3. Should you refuse my offer I will send them back registered and insured with no obligation. 4. Should your stamps be worth over $10,000, I will fly in and make you an on-the-spot offer.

QUESTION— Mr. Shiaras, are flea markets here to stay? Yes, they are. Besides providing extra income for many on Social Security they provide a great service for the new breed collector. He can meet up to 200 dealers in one afternoon and do his shopping without moving over a few hundred feet. The days of the small open shop is slowly drawing to a close, sad to say.

A high price might keep you from buying a new home.

But a low price shouldn't.

A Wausau Home costs thousands of dollars less than comparable homes. Because of the way we buy materials and the efficiency of our controlled building system.

For example, every Wausau Home is built with the finest grade kiln-dried lumber. 100% copper plumbing. Real ceramic tile walls and floors in the bath.

We buy the very best and we buy in quantity. Which lowers the price, not the quality.

And we build under the very best conditions, indoors, out of the weather.

Stop by for a close look at a Wausau Home. But don't let our low prices scare you. That shouldn't keep you from buying the new home you want.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE F-441: Don J., aged 32, teaches college chemistry.
"Dr. Crane," he began, "I have been very much interested in your daily 'Worry Clinic.' For I was the usual introverted scientist and thus wasn't making progress in courting a very popular girl."

"But when I used your 'Compliment Club' strategy, plus that neat little H-E-L-P conversational formula, I began to rate tops and now she is my wife."

"But I have also been intrigued by your stress on the possible medical advantages of drinking a little ocean water daily."

"Recently, you quoted the Bible (Genesis 6:3) where God said we human beings are allotted a lifespan of 120 years. Do you think many people would ever be able to attain that 120 years?"

Mental Barriers
Perhaps our failure to live as long as Moses did (120 years) is partly due to a mental barrier. For we have usually accepted that "three score and ten" lifespan ever since King David died at that age of 70.

Similarly, ever since the development of watches, we also felt no human being could run the mile in less than the magical four minutes.

Indeed, probably nobody in the previous 5,000 years of recorded history ever did so! Back in 1864, Charles Lawes, of Britain, set the world record for the mile run at 4:56.

By 1884, Walter George (Britain) had reduced it to 4:18.4 and then it slowly was pulled lower by Scottish, then French, Finnish, New Zealand, Swedish and American track stars.

For example, our own Glen Cunningham set the world record at 4:6.8 in 1934.

Finally, Arne Andersson (Sweden) in 1944 ran the mile in 4:01.6, to have his record erased the very next year by Gunder Haegg (Sweden) in a time of 4:01.4.

Experts thereafter regarded the four-minute mile as unattainable!

Until that young British physician, Roger Bannister, shocked the sports world in 1954 with a 3:59.4 mile!

Six more men then beat that until in 1967, Jim Ryun clipped off eight full seconds by setting the world record at 3:51.1. Now it's under 3:50.

So, when human beings raise their sights and find that other people can beat the supposedly impossible long established records, their mental barrier is shattered and they set new goals.

Already we have several thousand Americans above the age of 100.

If we avoid accidents and ingest the proper food as well as trace chemicals, Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, the world's most famous physiologist, says we have the anatomical machinery to reach 120 years.

God made Adam out of the dust, so the Bible states, and that means Adam's body contained all the 44 water-soluble trace chemical elements on this planet, plus the five gases.

And all of us still have traces of those 44 in our blood, but erosion and leaching of the soil by rainfall, have reduced many of them, which is why we iodized salt in 1924 to prevent simple goiter.

Many other deficiency ailments, like gray hair, diabetes, cancer and others may also be due to a prolonged lack of those 44 vital trace chemicals.

For our internal glands can't manufacture their healthful secretions without an adequate supply of vital trace chemicals.

So send for the booklet "The Ocean's 44 Trace Chemicals," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

CLASSIFIED ads are so reasonably priced. And they are read by thousands.
